After a brief residence in Florida, where he went when his health began to fail, Dr. Swartz went to Baltimore nearly two years ago and has since made his home with his son, Professor Swartz.

In 1854 Dr. Swartz married Miss Adelia Rosecrans related to the family of General Rosecrans. Mrs. Swartz gained prominence for her work among the boys and girls who sold newspapers in Baltimore during the Civil War. She established the Children's Industrial Home, a large institution at Harrisburg.

WANT NO MORE SUNDAY WORK

Gettysburg's Ministers Protest against More Work being Put on Mail Carriers. Will Hold Mass Meeting here in the Near Future.

At a meeting of the Gettysburg Ministerial Association on Monday, resolutions were authorized protesting against the measure now before Congress which provides for additional work being imposed upon mail carriers on Sunday. The document, signed by the ministers of town, will be forwarded to the proper parties.

It was also decided on Monday that a mass meeting of all the ministers in Adams County, together with representative laymen who are interested, be called for the near future to consider matters of public good for the county at large. A prominent speaker will be secured for the meeting which is to be held in the Court House. The date will be announced later.

In view of the influence the late Calvin Hamilton wielded here as school teacher, school director, member of the Battlefield Memorial Association, superintendent of the National Cemetery and member of the session of the Presbyterian church, resolutions of sympathy and respect were drawn up and sent to the family.

No further business of public interest came before the regular monthly meeting of the association.

NEW RAILROAD PRESIDENT HERE

Western Maryland's New Head Visits Gettysburg together with Other Officials of the Road. Interested in Local Prospects.

Carl R. Gray, the new president of the Western Maryland, with a dozen other officials of that road, J. M. Fitzgerald, the retiring president, and A. R. Merrick, who will step out as general superintendent, visited Gettysburg late Monday afternoon on an inspection trip.

The party came in a private train and arrived in Gettysburg after an inspection of the road between Baltimore and York. They stayed in York for a short time, made brief stops at Hanover and other points on the line and their stay in Gettysburg was limited to fifteen or twenty minutes after which their train proceeded westward.

One of the first acts of the new president is a thorough inspection of all the property of the road and several days will be consumed in this work. At Gettysburg and other places on the line he found everything in the best of condition. An order had been sent out several days previous to have everything in readiness to welcome the new executive of the road and all properties were cleaned up in preparation for the promised visit.

Mr. Gray and his fellow officers had little to say during their brief stay here. They showed a desire to know as much as possible concerning the company's business at this point. Gettysburg is recognized and advertised as a tourist point by the Western Maryland more than by any other road and they depend upon this place for a large proportion of the summer tourist traffic. Mr. Gray, of course, has had this pointed out to him and as a result was particularly anxious to know just what Gettysburg had in store for the summer.

The new president gives the impression of being a man with keen business instinct though possessing the qualities that will make him many friends and acquaintances who will find him a delightful friend.

TWO DOCTORS ARE DROPPED

Dr. Meisenhelder One of the York Physicians who Suffer because of Action they Took in Investigation of Hospital.

Because they were active in gathering evidence for the Woman's Club, which conducted an investigation into conditions at the York Hospital, Drs. J. H. Bennett and E. W. Meisenhelder, Jr., were on Monday dismissed from the medical staff. Unanimous action against the two doctors was taken at a meeting of the board of directors.

They were charged with disloyalty to the institution. The recent investigation of charges that the hospital was in an unsanitary condition and that nurses were neglected ended in an exonerated of the hospital management, the investigators deciding that the charges were untrue.

Some weeks ago the two dismissed doctors were given notice that they must appear before the directors on or before March 14 and give good reasons why they should not be dropped from the medical staff. This notice the two doctors ignored. Several nurses were also cited to appear before the board and present valid reasons why they should not be prohibited from attending patients in the York hospital. These nurses also ignored the board's letters, but no action was taken on Monday by the directors toward carrying out the threatened boycott. These nurses, it is said, also gave evidence against the hospital in the recent investigation.

It is said that neither Dr. Meisenhelder, Jr., nor Dr. Bennett have made use of their privilege as members of the hospital staff since the recent investigation. Dr. Meisenhelder, Jr., has opened a private hospital at 301 North Hartley street.

STANDS PAT ON ULSTER PROJECT

Asquith Will Make no Further Concession on Home Rule.

OPPOSITION MUST DECIDE

The Premier Tells House of Commons "the Government Adheres to its Proposals."

London, March 17. — The British government will make no further concessions to the Unionists of Ulster province, who object to home rule.

The announcement to this effect was made in the house of commons by Premier Asquith. "The government adheres to the proposals made last Monday," said the premier.

These proposals give the residents of the counties in Ulster province a referendum to say whether or not they shall be excluded from the operation of the home rule bill.

That the ministry believes that the Unionists finally will accept the concessions already offered was indicated by the following part of Premier Asquith's statement:

"If the proposals for the exclusion of Ulster for a limited period are accepted by the Unionists, there must be adjustments of the measure, especially of those clauses relating to the administrative sections of the proposed Irish government. These are now being carefully worked out."

"We are not prepared with a cut and dried statement at the present time to cover all the proposals rejected by the people of the north of Ireland, and it would be a waste of time to discuss the ancillary and consequential points."

The premier said that the proposals had been made because "the cabinet believed it to be the best method of dealing with the question and the logical attempt to try to reach a basis of final settlement."

Mr. Asquith put the issue directly up to the opposition when he said:

"I now ask the Unionists if they are prepared to accept the principle of the proposals outlined here last Monday? We do not know whether to go any further or not."

After he had delivered his statement, the premier submitted to interpellations. He said that the lord lieutenant of Ireland would not continue his duties over any part of the island which excluded itself from home rule, nor would the Dublin parliament be able to impose taxes in those districts. It would be necessary to increase the amount of allowance to the Irish exchequer on other adjustments are also necessary.

The Unionists created prolonged uproar during and after the premier's speech. Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, leaped to his feet, shouting: "Do you not now recognize that the proposals are nothing but hypocritical shams?"

Fells With Fist Militant.

London, March 17.—Dr. James Devon, prison commissioner for Scotland, when attacked in Glasgow by an irate militant suffragette armed with a dog whip, took the law in his own hands and knocked his assailant down with a well aimed left hand blow.

The woman, whose identity was not discovered, met the prison commissioner at the entrance to the Duke street prison and belabored him over the head and shoulders with her dog whip.

Dr. Devon is an advocate of forcible feeding, and is bitterly opposed to what he considers the farcical release of suffragettes because they are suffering from the effects of "hunger strikes." The woman was placed under arrest, but Dr. Devon refused to prosecute her and she was released.

"MOTHER" JONES DEPORTED

Did Not Ask to See Governor and Will Return to Strike Zone.

Denver, Colo., March 17.—That she was deported from Trinidad, whence she came here, that she never asked to see the governor, that she was accompanied to Denver by militia officers, taken to a hotel and was not told she had been released, and that she expected to return to the strike zone soon, were points emphasized in a statement made by "Mother" Mary Jones, noted strike leader, who had been a military prisoner at the San Rafael hospital, Trinidad, since Jan. 1.

Immediately after giving out the statement she left for the state house to call on Governor Ammons.

General Chase stated that "Mother" Jones would be rearrested should she return to Trinidad.

CAPTAIN JOHNSON.
Member of Trial Board Blames Him For Monroe Wreck.

LAYS SEA DISASTER TO MONROE CAPTAIN

Member of Trial Board Exonerates Nantucket.

Philadelphia, March 17.—The trial of Captain Osmyr Berry, of the Merchants' and Miners' steamship Nantucket, which rammed and sank the Old Dominion liner Monroe on the morning of Jan. 30 off the Virginia Capes, causing the loss of forty-one lives, came to an end in the federal building, when two members of the United States board of steamboat inspectors disagreed as to the skipper's responsibility for the accident.

In the absence of a decision the case now rests as it was at the beginning of the trial a month ago, and the reports of the two examiners will be submitted to the department of steamboat inspection at Washington. This department will determine what course any further action may take.

Captain Berry had been charged with negligence in permitting his ship to ram the Old Dominion liner. Without waiting for the final argument of the defendant's attorney, R. A. Sergeant, one of the members of the trial board, had prepared his report exonerating Captain Berry and recommending that Captain Edward Johnson, of the Monroe, be charged with incompetency, unskillfulness and negligence. This he read immediately following the argument of Captain Berry's attorney, John Frederic Lewis.

The report caused surprise by its complete whitewashing of the accused captain and his accusation against Captain Johnson. After the report had been read the two members of the board conferred. Mr. Sergeant then announced that his fellow examiner, D. H. Howard, had refused to agree with him. Mr. Howard said that in his opinion the testimony given during the hearings did not vindicate the accused skipper.

MURDER LAID TO MEXICAN BANDIT

U. S. Seeks Extradition of Man Who Killed Postmaster.

TROOPS SENT TO THE SCENE

Five Priests Are Slain by Rebels and Three More Are Held For a Ransom.

Washington, March 17.—Members of a Mexican railroad construction gang killed Postmaster Frank V. Johnston and burned the postoffice at Tecate, Cal., on Saturday night, according to a report to the war department from army headquarters at San Francisco. None of the men has been apprehended.

Satisfied by this report that no Mexican Federal soldiers or officials were involved, and that the crime was not political, state department officials announced that the affair would be handled in the ordinary way.

Every effort will be made to procure the arrest of the murderers and have them returned to California under extradition proceedings for trial.

The report to the war department said:

"Three or more Mexicans, armed with revolvers, crossed the national line at Tecate, killing one civilian and wounding another civilian seriously and burning the store, including the body of the civilian. The Mexicans escaped, but one was recognized as a member of a railroad construction gang quartered about a half-mile southwest of Tecate. Federal soldiers not now thought implicated. Captain Page and three squads of the Twenty-eighth Company, Coast Artillery, are now encamped at Tecate, with orders to assist the customs and immigration officials in the enforcement of the neutrality laws. Everything reported quiet now."

Begin Battle at Torreon.

El Paso, Tex., March 17.—The long heralded fight for the possession of Torreon, which is the railway junction from which radiate all the lines going north and the key to the cities of Saltillo and Monterrey, began with a simultaneous advance of Federal and rebel forces. It is reported that one Federal troop train has been destroyed near Zavala by a rebel mine, with great loss of life.

FIVE PRIESTS SLAIN

Refugee Tell of the Rebels Looting Churches and Burning Convent.

New Orleans, March 17.—Five priests have been slain by rebels in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas since Nov. 18 last, three are held for ransom, a convent has been burned and a cathedral and a smaller church looted, according to two Catholic priests, Father Jose Moreno Medina and Father Raymond Gonzales, who have arrived in New Orleans. Both said they had been driven from Victoria, Mexico.

"Three weeks ago soldiers, under Colonel Cavero, demanded money," said Father Medina. "We gave them what we had, but it was not enough. Becoming angered, they took away the gold and silver utensils and wrecked the inside of the building. The figure of the Saviour was smashed to bits and other statues broken and trampled under foot."

"Archbishop Jose Guzman and his aged aunt were thrown into the street by the marauders. The archbishop died two days later, and just before we left we heard that the aunt was dying. The rebels then went to the American convent, drove out the Sister and her charges and set the building on fire."

At Tula a church was looted by the rebels in the same manner as at Victoria, said Father Medina, and his two assistants, Basilio and Luis Romanes, were kidnapped. He said they were taken into the hills, where they were held for a ransom of 500 pesos each, their parishioners having been notified that unless the ransoms are paid the priests will be put to death.

Johnny waited until the nurse had gone, then he sneaked out clad only in pajamas and slippers. He darted through the deep snow across lots and doctors and nurses ran after him. Two blocks away Johnny lost one of his slippers and a man grabbed him.

FAVOR ONE TRUST BILL

Senate Sub-Committee Thinks It More Effective Than "Five Brothers." Washington, March 17.—President Wilson's trust regulation plan was somewhat upset by obstreperous senators.

The sub-committee on interstate commerce of the upper house has a measure of its own and thinks much of it. They favor it in perfecting proposed legislation to supplement the Sherman law.

Announcement came just after introduction in the house of the revised bill to create an interstate trade commission. Much conflict exists among Democratic leaders over it.

The senate plan is for one trust regulation bill instead of the "Five Brothers." It would create a trade commission with broader powers than favored by the president and his attorney general.

The senate bill, it was said, would empower the proposed commission to institute investigations on its own initiative. Its champions declare that elimination of the initiative in the house bill would rob the proposed commission of effectiveness.

SIR JOHN MURRAY KILLED BY MOTOR

Noted Naturalist and Scientist Caught Under Car.

Edinburgh, Scotland, March 17.—Sir John Murray, noted scientist and naturalist, was killed and his daughter was probably fatally injured in a motor accident.

The automobile in which they were riding was overturned and crushed both of them beneath it.

Sir John Murray was one of the many sons of Canada who won fame and added to the role of achievement in the British empire.

He was born at Coburg, Ontario, on March 3, 1841, the son of Robert Murray, an accountant. He received his education at the public school in London, Ontario, and Victoria college. Murray's parents, who had emigrated from Scotland, were poor, and with difficulty provided him with so much of his education, but his time at Victoria college was marked by his first scientific impulse.

The scientist was knighted in 1893, being created a Knight Companion of the Bath. In addition to these honors at the hands of his own and the German sovereigns, he also, in 1910, received the Grand Cross of the Royal Norwegian Order of St. Olav.

Sir John was made a British delegate to the International Hydrographic Conference at Stockholm in 1899.

BEST DISTRICT

This District Holds First Rank in Sale of Cigar Stamps.

Very few persons know that the United States internal revenue office at York, sells more cigar stamps than any other such office in the country.

There are 35 counties in the Ninth internal revenue district, and the York office sells more than half the cigar stamps sold in the whole district. Thus York county stands in the front rank of the cigar manufacturing centers of the United States.

The receipts from all sources at the office for 1913, ending with December 31 last, were $1,203,259.94. This sum is a fair average, compared with former years. The highest receipts for any one year, according to the records were slightly in excess of a million and a quarter dollars. Of this sum more than 90 per cent. represents the tax imposed upon the manufacture of cigars.

During 1913, 152 new cigar factories were opened in York county and a few townships of Adams county which are under the jurisdiction of the York revenue office. These factories gave employment to approximately 1,000 hands. There are at the present time more than 1,200 cigar factories in York city and county, all of which secure stamps through the York office.

MY PHOTO GIRL

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Imagine yourself a man twenty years old, named Richard, in the springtime, when the little god of love is ditting about, bringing down young people here and there with his arrows. You put your hand in the pocket of your light overcoat, smelling of moth balls from the winter's packing, and draw out a large brown envelope, of which you have no remembrance, containing a photograph of the loveliest face of a young girl you have ever seen. And, to cap the climax, written across the lower part of the card are the words in ink, "To dearest Dick."

That was what happened to me on putting on for the first time since the autumn before a spring overcoat. Looking at the face before me, a smile perched on the lips between two dimples, a saucy look in the eyes, I exclaimed:

"Pretty enough to kiss."

After feasting my eyes for some time, drinking in at the same time the words, "To dearest Dick," I began to concern myself as to how the photograph came into my pocket. Taking off the overcoat, I examined it, casting a glance at the maker's tag sewed on the back of the neck. That solved the problem so far as the coat was concerned. The name was not that of my tailor. I was happy to observe, however, that it had been bought at a store in the city where I lived—happy because the nefarious design was born in my mind to rob, if possible, this other Dick of his sweetheart.

However, I was not a common thief and did not care to keep a coat I did not own. I took it to the tailor who made it, told him that I had probably exchanged it the autumn before in some coat room and asked him to find the owner. He succeeded in doing so, and an exchange of coats was made.

It was not long before, at a dance, who should appear on the floor executing the tango but the girl of the photograph. I must pause to say that she not only danced gracefully, but properly. Her partner was a handsome young man whom I assumed to be Dick, and he was Dick.

I spent half an hour in finding some one to introduce me to my photo girl, and succeeded. I was and am still fond of dancing and invited her to dance. Before the evening was over I told her that I had her photograph, and after I had teased her for some time as to how I got it I gave her the story.

"I cannot understand," I added, "how 'dearest Dick' could have received back his overcoat without asking for the picture in the pocket."

"It wasn't complimentary, was it?" "I should say not. It shall not pass out of my possession so easily. No one shall have it except yourself, and I will only surrender it to you on an unequivocal demand."

"Indeed!" she said—a very convenient word by which to say something that means nothing. Encouraged by not receiving an unequivocal demand, I proceeded:

"My name is Dick."

"Indeed?" "Not being stopped in this abrupt love-making to one I had not seen before that evening, I proceeded to describe my feelings on finding her photograph, using much the same language as I have used here. Suddenly I stopped in my encomiums, asking to be excused from a charge of flattery."

"You are perfectly excusable," she said. "Have you anything more of the same sort?"

I told her there was a lot more, but words were inadequate to express it. I asked about Dick, advancing as far as I dared toward a direct question as to whether or not she was engaged to him—since she had been called "Miss." I knew she was not married—but she gave me no satisfaction. I have noticed that a woman when a man gets on to the subject of love, so far as she is concerned, is quite willing to listen, but constitutionally opposed to talking. At any rate, when we parted this one had my secret, but I had not been honored with her confidence.

I asked permission to call upon her, and it was granted. After calling once or twice I asked her to go to the theater with me. She said she would refer the matter to Dick. "He is very easy with me," she said. "I expect he won't object."

"He must be a remarkable lover," I said. "To permit his fiancée to go out with men other than himself."

She vouchsafed no reply to this, but informed me later that Dick had consented to her going out with me, putting an accent on the "me" that led me to think I was not to be feared.

One evening when I called on my photo girl I found Dick sitting snugly up to her on a sofa. They were looking over a book of pictures together. As I entered the room, without even rising she said unconcernedly:

"Dick, this is Mr. —, who exchanged overcoats with you."

"I think it must have been my fault," I said. "I believe you didn't miss anything that was in your pockets, did you?"

"No, I didn't."

"The photograph I had taken about that time," said the girl.

"My sister is always giving me her photographs," remarked Dick, and he left the room.

"Humph!" I said. "Brother, eh?" "Did I say he wasn't my brother?"

We were engaged before I left the house.

HIS FIRST HONORS.

They Were Political and Came With a Queer Sort of Compliment.

At a dinner party in Washington the other night Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, told how he came to receive his first political honors. "I had been a worker in the vineyard for a long time," he said, "and had never sought or expected any preferment from the party organization. I was just a good working Democrat. When Mr. Bryan began to emerge as a public man and as a Democratic leader I got interested in him and became one of his champions and supporters. I became an ardent free silver man and a believer in unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1."

"When it was time to select delegates to the Democratic national convention at Chicago in 1896 there was a fellow in my town who wanted to be sent as a delegate mightily badly. He went around to the state chairman to see what he could do."

"Jim," he said, "I want to be sent as one of the delegates to Chicago."

"Well," said the chairman, "how do you stand on free silver?"

"Oh, well, I guess—I reckon I believe in it all right, but I ain't no fool about it."

"Well," answered the chairman, "you can't go."

"So they sent me," concluded Daniels.—New York Post.

Fight On.

Let the man who has to make his fortune remember this maxim: Attacking is the only secret. Dare and the world yields, or if it beat you sometimes dare it again, and it will succumb.—Thackeray.

One Enough For Him.

Clubmen in London are laughing over a recent conversation between a weather expert and a cabinet minister. The minister complained about the other's weather forecasts not always being reliable, and the reply was that weather forecasting would be much easier if it were known more definitely the sort of weather that was happening in the Atlantic.

"Now," said the expert, "if only we had farther out in the Atlantic another island like Ireland!"

"Heaven forbid!" ejaculated the minister, who had been greatly harassed over the home rule dispute.

Brought Phil May to Time.

Phil May, like most geniuses, was erratic, and it was not easy to get him to deliver his drawings on time. Carmichael Thomas, who had commissioned some special drawings for the London Graphic, secured their delivery in a strikingly original and highly successful way.

When May woke up in the morning he found a company of sandwich men pacing up and down before his flat carrying boards that announced Phil May drawings in a special number of the Graphic. Wherever May went that day the sandwich men followed him. When he chartered a hansom they chartered hansom, and finally, as May told the story, he was driven to taking the first train down to the seaside.

When he arrived there he got another jolt, for the first thing that met his eyes were the Graphic sandwich men parading outside his hotel. He went inside, sat down and finished the drawings.

Thus importunity and Carmichael Thomas conquered.

An Innocent.

Victor Watson, on information and belief, alleges that Frank Thompson, son of the late Denman Thompson, is singularly unspotted by contact with this more or less sordid world. The other night Thompson was approached upon the street by an old friend of his father.

"Ah, sir," said the stranger, "many's the time I've seen your dear old dad play in 'The Old Homestead.' Greatest actor that ever lived, sir! Don't deny it."

Mr. Thompson said mildly that he would not deny it.

"He and me," said the stranger earnestly, "were the greatest pals."

Mr. Thompson was politely interested. The stranger continued at some length. Then he bade Thompson goodbye.

"Er," said he after shaking his head, "I hate to mention it, but could you slip me a buck?"

"A buck?" queried Mr. Thompson vaguely. "Certainly. But how much is a buck?"

"Three dollars," said the stranger.—New York Globe.

DISEASE PREVENTION.

Cleanliness a Prime Factor in Heading Off Hog Cholera.

Best way to prevent hog cholera is to keep the hog clean. Have a clean, warm, dry place to sleep in winter and damp and cool in summer, says an Ohio farmer in the National Stockman. Don't pen the hog. Keep on pasture in summer. In winter keep the hog out of the mud and keep clean and dry. Give different kinds of food. The hog must have pasture in summer. In winter eat alfalfa, but fine and feed in slop made of shorts, bran, ground corn and oats. If alfalfa is not at hand cut clover hay or timothy and feed with slop.

The hogs must have rough feed and different kinds of grain. Can't be kept well on one kind of feed and fed and kept in an unclean place. They must be dipped to keep vermin off. Must have rings in the nose to keep from rooting. Farmers had best resort for the benefit of the hog. Set out the different kinds of fruit and forest trees for them to live in. No serum or medicine will reach man or beast unless the feed, way of life and surroundings are favorable to the health of the body and mind.

GROWING FINE WOOL.

Climatic Conditions That Tend to Produce the Best Fleeces.

The climate has an important influence upon sheep raising. There are some sections of the country where fine woolled sheep can be raised to better advantage and other sections where mutton sheep produce the greatest profits, says the Iowa Homestead.

In order to develop a good coat of wool an animal must not be limited in the quantity of food, but the food should be of a dry character. Wool of the finest staple and produced in the greatest quantity with the least amount of work is obtained when the following considerations are met:

Good, fine woolled stock must be had to begin with. In the second place, the sheep must be grown in a warm climate. In the third place, dry, nutritious herbage must be provided, and in the last place a dry soil must be had on which the sheep may run.

It is apparent, then, that an arid country is best for raising fine woolled sheep. Experiments in many parts of the world have proved that this is the case. Where there is a great deal of dampness the fine woolled sheep do not do well. They do not thrive as they should and they do not produce wool of the highest quality.

This is the big reason why Australia is so popular as a sheep breeding country. The arid climate in certain parts of Australia seems to be just exactly right for the production of fine wool. In fact, some go so far as to say that this is the best place in the world for raising fine woolled sheep.

There are several sections of the United States, however, which have climates much resembling that of Australia. In certain parts of California fine woolled sheep thrive well.

He Stirred Up Business.

With a view to stirring up business a restaurant keeper in an English town placed one day a rather daring announcement at the door of his place of business.

Waiting until next day, a man went in and had dinner enough for two. As he was leaving without paying, the proprietor stopped him at the door and demanded payment.

The queer notice was still posted at the door, and the customer, pointing to it, asked what it meant.

"It means exactly what it says," replied the angry proprietor; "There is no charge for dinner tomorrow."

"Good!" said the customer. "My name is Morrow, so I am entitled to a free dinner."

Riley's Gold Mine.

"James Whitcomb Riley," said a dentist, "carries a great quantity of gold in his mouth. One day, seated in the operating chair, while some minor repair work was going on, I left him for a moment. I heard a gentle murmur. Mr. Riley had taken up a hand mirror, was looking at his teeth, and indulging in a talk to himself. 'Well, well, well,' said the poet, 'what a quantity of gold. Looks as if I had eaten a national bank and had forgotten to pick my teeth after dinner.'"

The spoiling of the silage that is left after the winter feeding is over and which it is desired to carry through the summer may be reduced considerably if the silage is tramped down thoroughly and a barrel of salt scattered over the surface. If the surface of the silage seems too dry, water should be supplied before the salt is put on.

RESTORED HIS COURAGE.

The Incident Took the Fright Out of the Raw Recruit.

An old soldier, telling how nervous he was before his first battle, said: "I was scared through and through, and besides that, I was scared for fear somebody else would find it out. I was nineteen, and I've often thought that if it hadn't been for a little thing that happened to distract my mind while we were on the march, my legs never would have carried me to the front. We were in camp and just getting ready to have our dinner, when orders came for us to hurry forward and join a brigade that was to engage the enemy. So we had to gobble down a cold snack and start. Having my first battle loom up before me sudden like that I couldn't eat much of anything and I didn't have much stomach for fighting. At first I was looking round for a haystack to scoot for and hide in, but after a time I began to get interested in the left hand overcoat pocket of Piper, the man in front of me.

"It looked to me as if there was something very new alive in that pocket. Every now and then Piper would clasp his hand over it and I could hear stifled noises from the depths of the pocket that made me suspicious. The lieutenant heard them, too, for twice he turned round and looked fierce enough to eat us. "By and by, when Piper was off his guard, the thing poked its head out far enough to screech: 'Cut! Cut!' Piper he squeaked the second 'cut'—cut it in two, you might say, but the lieutenant heard something and he looked round and shouted, 'Silence in the ranks there!'

"The men near Piper snickered, but nothing more happened till the order came down the line to shift our guns to the right shoulder. Then, of course, Piper had to use both hands, and the minute he let go of his pocket out scrambled as mad a pullet as you ever saw, and when she'd flopped on to the ground she scurried away, screeching, 'Cut! cut! cut-dah-cut!' at the top of her lungs. Well, the captain couldn't help hearing that, and naturally he looked back to see what the row was, and when he saw what had happened he sung out at the top of his voice:

"Corporal Davis, take three men and bring back that deserter!"

"That made everybody feel middling cheerful, but those who knew where the chicken had come from got a real good laugh when Piper put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a new laid egg. Honestly, I forgot all about being afraid after that."—Youth's Companion.

RESTORED HIS COURAGE.

The Incident Took the Fright Out of the Raw Recruit.

An old soldier, telling how nervous he was before his first battle, said: "I was scared through and through, and besides that, I was scared for fear somebody else would find it out. I was nineteen, and I've often thought that if it hadn't been for a little thing that happened to distract my mind while we were on the march, my legs never would have carried me to the front. We were in camp and just getting ready to have our dinner, when orders came for us to hurry forward and join a brigade that was to engage the enemy. So we had to gobble down a cold snack and start. Having my first battle loom up before me sudden like that I couldn't eat much of anything and I didn't have much stomach for fighting. At first I was looking round for a haystack to scoot for and hide in, but after a time I began to get interested in the left hand overcoat pocket of Piper, the man in front of me.

"It looked to me as if there was something very new alive in that pocket. Every now and then Piper would clasp his hand over it and I could hear stifled noises from the depths of the pocket that made me suspicious. The lieutenant heard them, too, for twice he turned round and looked fierce enough to eat us. "By and by, when Piper was off his guard, the thing poked its head out far enough to screech: 'Cut! Cut!' Piper he squeaked the second 'cut'—cut it in two, you might say, but the lieutenant heard something and he looked round and shouted, 'Silence in the ranks there!'

"The men near Piper snickered, but nothing more happened till the order came down the line to shift our guns to the right shoulder. Then, of course, Piper had to use both hands, and the minute he let go of his pocket out scrambled as mad a pullet as you ever saw, and when she'd flopped on to the ground she scurried away, screeching, 'Cut! cut! cut-dah-cut!' at the top of her lungs. Well, the captain couldn't help hearing that, and naturally he looked back to see what the row was, and when he saw what had happened he sung out at the top of his voice:

"Corporal Davis, take three men and bring back that deserter!"

"That made everybody feel middling cheerful, but those who knew where the chicken had come from got a real good laugh when Piper put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a new laid egg. Honestly, I forgot all about being afraid after that."—Youth's Companion.

FOILED THE MAJOR

He Had to Flee at the Last Battle of the Revolution.

A FIGHT WON WITH A BROOM.

The Engagement Was Short, Sharp and Decisive, and in It the Patriotic Spitfire, Mistress Day, Earned the Right to Her Title and to Fame.

The last battle of the Revolution was not at Yorktown, nor was it any of the many small skirmishes that occurred after the surrender of Cornwallis and before the formal declaration of peace in 1783. The last battle was of the nature of a duel, and it happened on the day the British evacuated New York.

The great day that was to see the last of King George III's regiments leave these shores finally arrived. The British army was to board the ships that lay in the harbor. Washington and his troops were waiting at Kingsbridge and McGowan's pass to take possession of the city immediately on their departure.

Major William Cunningham, the British provost marshal and commander of the prison on the common, gave one last look about his office, tossed the key on the table and went out into the sunlight, slamming the door behind him with much unnecessary violence. His infamous reign was over. There were few forms of cruelty that he had hesitated to practice on the luckless Continental prisoners in his charge. Among the mildest were the contamination of their drinking water by throwing rubbish into the well and the appropriation and sale of their rations for his own profit.

The friends and relatives of his victims were flocking back to the city triumphant, and it behooved Major Cunningham not to linger. So he left the prison, turned into the common, and crossed it to rain Broadway.

He strode along muttering curses under his breath. At the corner of Broadway and Murray street something caught his eye. He stopped, hesitated, then turned aside and hastened down Murray street.

"What rascality! What monstrous audacity!" he thought. But it was like that rebel spitfire, Mistress Day. He would teach her one final lesson.

He reached the Day house, which was a tavern near Greenwich street, opened the gate and shook his fist at the Stars and Stripes that fluttered from a tall flagpole, as if waving a triumphant welcome to the Continental troops.

Wrathfully he seized the halcyons and began to pull the flag down the pole. There was something about the action that soothed his ruffled feelings. He would at least take back to England with him one captured rebel banner. But he had reckoned without Mistress Day!

From her kitchen that patriote woman heard the creaking of the pulley on her flagstaff. She tipped to her front windows and peeped out. She knew the major only too well, and she determined to prevent this final outrage. She flew back to the kitchen and seized her broom.

In the meantime, with his back to the house, the major was hauling away vigorously. A few more jerks and the flag would be within his grasp. Bang! His hat suddenly flew off and went scuttling down the yard. In his astonishment he continued to pull mechanically on the halcyons. Bang, whack! The major saw many times more than thirteen stars, and the powder flew from his wig in all directions. He dropped the rope and turned about, purple with indignation.

"Woman, do you realize what you are doing?" he roared. The broomstick was in the air again, and the major dodged. Whack! It struck him squarely across the bridge of his nose, and the field at once became ensanguined.

The bleeding officer now began to take hasty counsel with himself. He was late for the embarkation, the American troops would soon be upon the ground, his hat had received an irreparable dent, his wig was in the wildest disorder, his regimentals were stained with marks of the bloody fray, his head was yet spinning from contact with Mistress Day's weapon, and there were unmistakable signs that Mistress Day's arm was by no means weary! Some warning bugle notes from the Battery decided the matter. He turned about and strode off, picking up his damaged headgear on the way. Mistress Day, smiling contentedly, returned to her kitchen to continue the baking and brewing for the evening festival.

It took the major some time to remove the evidences of conflict before he appeared at the Battery. He must have been hard put to it to explain his lateness and his disheveled state to his superior officer. His career after his return to England continued to be disreputable. He was executed for forty-eight years after he left New York. As for Mistress Day, the woman who flew the first American flag in the evacuated city and who fought and won the last conflict of the Revolution, she deserves a wider fame than she has enjoyed.—Youth's Companion.

DAIRY GLEANINGS.

Frequent sowing of ripening cream will make better flavored butter, as it causes the cream to ripen more evenly.

Good breeding and good feeding are so closely related that they must go together; one is useless without the other.

The heifer that is to be retained in the herd should be handled from her early calfhood so that she will have confidence in her keeper.

It's an exceptional cow that can get enough inspiration from a straw pile and a tank of ice water to give a decent mess of milk.

In feeding the cows do not give them more than they can use readily. Any feed that is left in the mangers after the cows are through will naturally represent a certain amount of waste.

The calves should be fed regularly, and they should have good, clean, pure feed in clean pails and boxes. Ignoring these points will account for much calf mortality.

FATTENING CATTLE.

Grain Ration Should Be Light For the First Few Weeks.

To my mind the first and most important step in fattening cattle is to have an abundant supply of good feed, writes H. W. Swope in the American Agriculturist. Throughout many sections silage is regarded as an absolute necessity. However, there are places where silage is more or less a necessity, but even in such localities something succulent in the form of silage is very essential for best results. In my particular case we use hay and corn silage. Both are palatable and are fed separately for the sake of variety.

A bunch of fattening cattle getting a good feed night and morning of cut straw and silage mixed ten hours before feeding and all the clover hay they will clean up nicely at noon will be well off for roughage. I do not know of any other ration on which cattle can be kept so full all the time without putting them off their feed. Every experienced feeder will agree with me that the secret of success in beef making lies largely in knowing how to keep the cattle full every day.

The ration should be palatable at all times. The grain may be fed at night and morning mixed with cut straw and silage. During the early part of the feeding season, it is a very easy matter to completely ruin the digestion of an animal by feeding too much grain for any considerable length of time.

A mixture of grain I find always gives me better results than any single variety fed alone. When cattle are put on a heavy ration of grain they make rapid gains for a time, perhaps for two months, and then they seem to come to a standstill and make little or no improvement. Therefore the point to be determined is not the amount of grain we can get an animal to consume, but the amount it is able to digest and assimilate properly.

I do not know of any grain that will put so good a finish on cattle as peas. I refer to Canadian field peas. A little pea meal fed during the last few weeks of the feeding season makes the cattle more firm, and they weigh a little better, but this must be fed in small quantities to give the desired result.

HANDLING SILAGE.

No More Than Is Needed For One Day Should Be Loosened.

The quality of the silage may be materially bettered by using care in taking it out. Don't put the fork down five or six inches deep, as though you were pitching manure, but use a fork with tines close together and skim off the top, only loosening what you need for the day's feeding.

Keep the surface level and perhaps a little lower near the outer walls. Silage cannot be handled as carelessly as ordinary roughage. The cows in eating will sometimes throw some out of the mangers, and some may be scattered in feeding unless you are very careful. If this is allowed to remain there it will soon cause a bad odor. The man that uses the broom freely along the feed alleys is the one that has a sweet smelling stable, a condition worth while, for milk takes up a foreign odor with surprising rapidity, and unless everything is sweet smelling the milk will tell it, and eventually the customer will find it out and take his trade elsewhere.

Good and Poor Cows.

To show that there is a vast difference in the profit producing capacity of dairy animals the records of three different classes of cows found in the Wisconsin university herd is interesting. One lot averaged 426.9 pounds of butter fat per year, another 301.8 pounds, and a third 195.3 pounds. The return over the feed cost for the best producers was $70.64 per year per cow, the second $42.18, and the last $19.01. Although each group required about the same care and feed, the total production and profit varied widely. To become skillful and successful in the care, feeding, selecting and breeding of dairy cows means to be successful in the business of dairying.—Kansas Farmer.

WIDEN DOORS TO THE MINISTRY

Methodists Drop Bar to Outside Graduates.

SURVIVES BITTER ATTACK

New Jersey Conference Adopts Resolution Recognizing Theological Students of Other Denominations.

Asbury Park, N. J., March 17.—The most radical step yet taken by the New Jersey Methodist conference, with a view to encouraging interdenominational co-operation, was embodied in a resolution introduced by Rev. Sherman D. Pitt, of Bridgeton, N. J. The resolution was adopted after a series of vigorous debates.

The resolution provides that students of seminaries under the supervision of other churches shall be permitted to enter the ministry of the Methodist church, providing that they have prepared with the same text books that are in use in the Methodist theological schools.

It was maintained by Dr. Pitt that the students of the Presbyterian seminary at Princeton, and the Reformed seminary at Rutgers, were prepared for the ministry with virtually the same text books as those used at Pennington and Drew, and he contended that the church would do itself a great deal of good by placing the graduates of those schools on the same plane with the graduates of the Methodist institutions.

When the resolution was introduced there was immediate objection by the "stand pat" ministers. They contended heatedly that such a procedure would "let down the bars" of Methodism. Their objection was to no avail, however, and the resolution was adopted by a one-sided vote.

The resolution not only provides that graduates of seminaries conducted by churches of other denominations shall be ordained to the Methodist ministry, but it also places students of those institutions who care to become Methodist elders and deacons on the same footing with candidates for the same appointments from Methodist theological seminaries.

One of the developments which is thought to have necessitated the revision of the practically completed appointment list, is the probability, that Rev. Melville E. Snyder, secretary of the conference and pastor of the Hamilton Avenue church, Trenton, will be assigned to act as field secretary for Pennington seminary, under the board of education, in an effort during the year to raise the $150,000 endowment fund endorsed by the conference.

A resolution was also passed asking "Billy" Sunday to come to Trenton and conduct a series of revival meetings, and from that city inaugurate a statewide "Billy Sunday campaign," which would reach the people of New Jersey from Cape May to Newark.

WOMAN SHOTS PARIS EDITOR

Mother of French Minister of Finance Wounds Journalist.

Paris, March 17.—Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, was shot and severely wounded in the office of the Figaro by Madame Caillaux, mother of Joseph Caillaux, French minister of finance.

The reason for the shooting is said to be anger against M. Calmette, who had been warring a campaign, characterized by great bitterness and animosity, against the minister of finance. At the time of the shooting M. Calmette was preparing to leave the office, when Madame Caillaux entered, seeking the editor. On finding M. Calmette she advanced toward him and fired several shots, one of which lodged in M. Calmette's chest.

PIRATES GET $30,000 IN LOOT

Chinese Robbing Ship Wear Badges Saying: "Money Comes Easily." Hong Kong, March 17.—Pirates boarded and looted the Norwegian steamer Childar off this port, carrying off booty to the value of $30,000, after overpowering, binding and gagging the six Europeans on board.

The steamer was carrying fifty passenger passengers, and as she was lying outside the desperadoes sprang over the bulwarks, seized the officers and began their search for loot.

The band escaped up the river in junks. The pirate wore as badges pieces of white cotton bearing in Chinese characters the words "Money comes easily."

Accuse Jeweler of Fraud.

New York, March 17.—As an aftermath of the reported robbery of Daniel Epner in Chicago recently of $50,000 worth of diamonds, New York creditors filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against Epner's brother, Samuel, a diamond dealer. The petitioners allege that Samuel Epner gave the diamonds to his brother to conceal, "with the intent to defraud his creditors."

DELVA LOCKWOOD NEAR FINANCIAL RUIN

Get Judgment Against Woman Who Run For President.

Washington, March 17.—Unless the sum of $3000 is secured within a few days, Delva A. Lockwood, the only woman ever duly nominated for president of the United States, faces financial ruin.

Suffering from the infirmities of her eighty-four years of honorable life, feeble and desolate, Mrs. Lockwood sits in a room at F street office building and home.

Ten thousand five hundred dollars was the sum needed to satisfy a judgment against her. A friend, Wade H. Cooper, president of the Union Savings bank, and the United States Savings bank, has agreed to personally assume all but $3000 of the loan, and there remains but a day or so in which to raise the balance.

Ever the champion of the cause of those who were oppressed, Mrs. Lockwood passed many years of her life in prosecuting the claims of the Oklahoma Indians, and won for them a tremendous judgment.

Assisting her in collecting evidence there was an Indian, Mrs. Lockwood and the Indian had drawn up a contract whereby her fee was to have been divided, a mere formality. Years passed, and as the Indian and all his family had benefited greatly the contract was tacitly ignored and forgotten.

The Indian died. Among his effects the old contract was found, and against Mrs. Lockwood for the sum of the fee was instituted, and she lost the suit.

"FORTUNE TELLING TRUST"

Prisoner Says They Are Sent Out From New York To Fleets Public. Allentown, Pa., March 17.—According to "Professor" John Brenner there is a "fortune telling trust" in New York, which establishes necromancers in various cities and exacts commissions from the proceeds they are able to gather from a fabled public.

"Professor" Brenner, who several weeks ago established himself next door to the home of Chief of Police Bernhart, pleaded guilty. He said he did not know that fortune telling was contrary to law.

Brenner had been in Allentown only a few days when he was arrested by Chief of Police Bernhart. In giving him the limit, $100 fine and nine months in jail, Judge Groman remarked that he was sorry he could not impose a heavier sentence.

Sentence Postoffice Robbers. Trenton, N. J., March 17.—John Lahey, of Philadelphia, was sentenced to eight years in the state prison for robbing the postoffice at Fintine, N. J., last fall. ## A Wireless Message From The Dead

By F. A. MITCHEL

We are moving so fast in scientific discoveries that, lost in wonder at what we know, we have no time to consider what our attained knowledge is likely to develop in future. For instance, we know that an electric current may be transmitted without any other medium than the atmosphere. We also know that functions of the body, if not electric, are a force something like electricity.

When I was a boy I was constantly finding myself saying something to a companion who would say, "Why, I was just about to say that myself!" At the time I considered this a coincidence. Now I believe it to be a power I possessed in receiving the mental impressions of others by a sort of wireless process. I studied medicine and became a doctor. Then during hospital work I broke down and, though it was between winter and spring, was obliged to go to the country to recuperate.

I stopped at a house that looked down a valley, and the view was unimpaired. I used to sit on the porch wrapped in rugs and enjoy the view in the sunshine. About a mile distant was a house that bore evidence of having been built in colonial times. It was not by any means a farmhouse, but something quite handsome. The architecture was that peculiar style involving a porch with pillars.

One night I was awakened by the sound of wheels stopping right under my window and thought I heard some one call "Doctor!" I raised the sash and put my head out through the window. A man in a wagon asked me if I was a doctor, and I said I was, whereupon he begged me to come with him at once. I dressed myself unwillingly, went downstairs and got into the wagon with him. I asked him to tell me about the nature of the case I was expected to treat, but could get nothing out of him. He seemed entirely absorbed in some powerful emotion.

We were but a few minutes in reaching our destination, drawing up before a house with pillars from the porch to the roof. I inferred that I had come to the house about which I had so often dreamed. The door was opened by a woman in a short petticoat full at the hips, a kerchief across her bosom and a dainty cap on her head. She looked very much troubled.

"Come upstairs," she said. I followed her up a winding staircase, and the woman opened a door with a glass knob. I entered the sickroom to see a young woman lying on a bed with four high posts surmounted by a canopy. On one side of her was a man holding one of her hands; on the other side was a young girl holding the other. These two looked at me with that mute appeal a doctor is so often obliged to meet.

As I drew near the bed the girl with the invalid pulled down the bedclothes, and I saw at once from blood stains and temporary bandages that my patient had been wounded. I was not a surgeon, but felt obliged to perform a surgeon's part. I examined the wound and saw that it was near the heart, so near that I wondered that the wounded woman lived. There was nothing that I could do for her except bind up the wound in a more professional manner and await results.

Presently I saw her gasp, and between gasps she said to the man beside her: "You are convinced of the unjustness of your suspicions?"

"Yes, yes; forgive me."

"I forgive you. Goodby."

She fell back dead.

Amid a wall of those present I retired from the room. Notwithstanding the tragical circumstances, I could not but notice the costume of those in the house. "What singular persons!" I said to myself. "Not content with living in a colonial house, they adopt the colonial costume." This was especially marked in their collars, which were like those I had seen in pictures of America's early settlers. I was ushered out by the woman who received me and driven back to my home, where I went to bed, remaining half awake, half asleep, for the rest of the night.

Now, there was something uncanny about my visit, and I hesitated to talk about it to those in the house. I asked if any of the family had heard a wagon stop before the house during the night, but no one had heard any such sound. This induced me to maintain a reserve about my visit. Presently I ventured to ask who lived in the house with pillars and was told that no one lived there. It had been unoccupied for many years. The last tenant had vacated some thirty years before. I asked if anything peculiar had taken place there, but no one had heard of anything unusual. But before returning to the city I heard from a very old resident of the region there was a legend that long before the Revolution a murder had been committed there. A man in a fit of jealousy had stabbed his wife.

And now in this second decade of the twentieth century I have come to believe that the scene I witnessed took place as I saw it many years ago; that it was stored somewhere; it may be in some soul across the border. Possibly one of the participants who flashed it to me by some such means as a wireless operator will flash a message from one side of the world to another.

Winter's Chills Breed Kidney Ills

Chilly, damp, changing weather is hard on the kidneys. Even more irritating are colds, grip, pneumonia, tonsillitis, quinsy and other infections. The kidneys get congested and inflamed, and this causes backache and disordered kidney action. Though serious in its latter stages, kidney disease is not hard to conquer if a good kidney remedy is used when the first signs of kidney trouble are noticed.

The best recommended kidney remedy in the world is Doan's Kidney Pills. You hear it everywhere. Get a box.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Spring is Breaking; Backs are Aching

Backache is often the first sign of some form of kidney disease that has been coming on for months. Look for the other signs;—lame back, sharp pains when lifting, dizzy spells, nervousness or despondency, with irregular, painful or distressing action of the kidneys; if these signs exist, decide that the kidneys need attention, ere the trouble turns to gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease.

Read this home testimony and then give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

GETTYSBURG PEOPLE TESTIFY

BALTIMORE STREET

John A. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, says: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills, in fact I always keep them in the house. I take a few doses occasionally and they keep my kidneys in good working order. I suffered off and on from pains in the kidneys. I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly get out of bed. Some one advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply at the People's Drug Store. It didn't take them long to give me relief. You may continue publishing my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills."

HANOVER STREET

Mrs. Mary Ohler, 147 Hanover St., Gettysburg, says: "I was troubled by disordered kidneys for over a year. My back ached constantly and pains extended from my loins into my head. I had chills and dizzy spells and was bothered by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended that I finally procured a box at the People's Drug Store and commenced their use. A few doses brought relief and after continuing the use of this remedy for a short time, all symptoms of the trouble disappeared."

FOURTH STREET

D. F. Arendt, Fourth St., Gettysburg, says: "We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family and don't think there is any other kidney remedy quite as good. I suffered from kidney trouble for years. I had pains across the small of my back and in my sides and had to get up at night on account of kidney weakness. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of all these troubles."

BRECKINRIDGE STREET

Mrs. J. Menchey, 46 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, says: "Since I used and publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago I have had no further need of a kidney medicine. I never enjoyed very good health and when kidney complaint came on, it caused me much distress. I had pains in my back and frequently had dizzy spells and chills. When a friend told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at the People's Drug Store. This remedy acted promptly and before long, I was in good health."

GETTYSBURG

F. G. McCammon, Gettysburg, says: "I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago and I still take them occasionally although I seldom need a kidney medicine. I suffered for quite a while from weak kidneys and a painful back. I tried several remedies and doctored, but with little success until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy rid me of the pains and aches."

WEST MIDDLE STREET

Mrs. M. A. Gilbert, 128 W. Middle St., Gettysburg, says: "I have had no need for Doan's Kidney Pills since I used and publicly recommended them some years ago. They are the best kidney remedy to use. My health was all run down, owing to disordered kidneys. I didn't have much of an appetite and couldn't sleep well. My back and head ached and I had dizzy spells and chills. Whenever I caught cold, I felt worse. One of my relatives advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got some at the People's Drug Store. It didn't take this remedy long to remove the trouble."
